Personality Traits

Adaptability

I am able to adjust to new situations and environments quickly. I've always found that I can quickly adjust to new situations and environments. In my academic journey, I've encountered constant changes. For instance, there have been times when I've overlooked crucial project requirements right before the due date, forcing me to think on my feet and solve problems creatively.

I also appreciate how different teaching styles impact the learning experience, whether it's shifting from a lecture-based approach to interactive discussions. These changes challenge me to recalibrate how I engage and participate in class. In this dynamic environment, my ability to embrace adaptability has been vital; it allows me to turn what could be disruptive moments into opportunities for personal growth and creativity. For me, being adaptable doesn't just help me cope with changes; it empowers me to respond effectively, ensuring that I can navigate challenges rather than be overwhelmed by them.

listen allows me to unwind and concentrate better before or after studying. It also cultivates a positive mindset and a heart of gratitude and thanksgiving.

My Hero

Background information

I introduce to you Mr. Delroy George Young affectionately known as Naaman. I call him daddy. My father is one of the most important person in my life as his life story has inspired me to strive for excellence no matter the circumstances and he has taught me valuable lessons along the journey of life. He was born in the parish of Trelawny, raised by his grandmother as a single parent. He was not grown in a bed of roses, but he has always tried to make the best of every situation. After years of growing up in the Trelawny, he later moved to live in Manchester in his early working life, where he worked at National Baking Products. He later bought a piece of land in Manchester where he laboured on for days and years to build a home and later got married and settled down and with his family where he continues to live. He is a devoted christian and faithful mmember and deacon of the church he attends.

How He became My Hero

Throughout his life, my father has faced many challenges; one major challenge was when he broke one of his legs during a bike accident after having his second child. Despite having this major setback, he was determined to quickly recover and fulfill his responsibilities as a husband and father. After this life-altering experience, he managed to overcome it and continued working, after which he became an entrepreneur. He showed discipline to have been able to expand significantly the family home that he began building before having a family and children. He also had four (4) more children, whom he was able to provide for and give a good education. Also, he has always remained strong and resilient. His unwavering dedication to his family and his faith has made him a true hero in my eyes. He has imparted amny words of wisdom over the years. But he made a very profound statement for someone that was not able to pass "middle school" and could barely read and write. He said when i got my first smallest job, "It is not how much money you make, but how much you save. "
